Stiefel F, Service de Psychiatrie de Liaison, University Hospital, Lausanne, Switzerland and Mari
Lloyd Williams, LOROS Hospice. Leicester, England

The objective of this lecture is to inform in a concise manner how to choose journals for publishing psychiatric research in palliative care, how the review process should be taken into account when writing a manuscript and what kind of reflections should precede the submission of a paper to a given journal. The discussion of these topics will be based on the speakers' own experiences of submitting and publishing manuscripts and on their experiences as reviewers and associate editors of a palliative care journal which regularly publishes psychiatric topics.
